INFORMATION FOR EMPLOYEES CONSIDERING DIRECT DEPOSIT

Direct Deposit permits your net pay to be electronically transferred directly to your checking or savings account. Instead of a paycheck, you receive an “advice” of amount deposited attached to your pay stub.

If you want to participate in direct deposit, complete a Direct Deposit Authorization form. Attach a voided check.

Why Participate

1. No standing in line at your bank, credit union or S & L. Your pay goes directly into your account automatically.
2. Some banks offer reduced service charges if the account holder uses direct deposit. Check with your bank to find out.
3. Some financial institutions post to automated teller (ATM) systems before regular banking hours, sometimes even the evening before.
4. All activity is included on your regular bank statement.

Other Considerations

The bank clearing system for direct deposit is the same as used for virtually all checks and paperless transactions. To be on direct deposit, your bank, S & L, or credit union must be a member of NACHA (National Automated Clearing House Association). Most institutions are.

Individual financial institution computer systems differ. You may want to call your financial institution to find out when accounts are posted.

After submitting your DD authorization form, a $0 amount “pre-notification test” deposit is processed through the bank clearing system. When this pre-notification test occurs, you will receive a pre-notification “advice” indicating the date your direct deposit status will become active. You will be notified if your bank reports any problem with the test transaction.

A garnishment order will temporarily suspend direct deposit status.

It will be your responsibility to complete a new authorization form if you want to cancel direct deposit, or if there is a change in the account, such as a change in name the account is under, or a change from one bank account to another.
